About Mo'Horns

Jazz | Funk | R&B | Gospel | Pop

History

Mo'Horns started in 1991 when Marvin Thompson and James Cheeks first met on a live recording during John P. Kee's VIP Convention in Washington, D.C. Many musical engagements followed as Marvin and James collaborated with renowned musical director Steve Lawrence. After creating horn arrangements for several artists and multi-media outlets, Marvin and James formed what is now Mo'Horns. The band consists of members, Marvin Thompson (trombone), James Cheeks (saxophones), and Theljon Allen (trumpet). Mo'Horns are voting members of the Recording Academy (Grammys), and also appear on several Grammy nominated and winning projects.

Venues

Mo'Horns recently appeared on TV One's Urban Honors Awards 2020. Their next latest project is a feature film entitled, "The High Note", starring Tracey Ellis Ross. Mo'Horns recently collaborated with Beltway Horns on an upcoming album due for release in 2020. Other Mo'Horns performances include The Tonight Show (Jay Leno) and the Dave Letterman Show. Performance venues include the renowned John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Blues Alley (Washington, D.C.), Madison Square Garden, The Royal Albert Hall (London, England), Tokyo, Japan, Billboard and more.

What They're Saying

Fred Hammond

This is a shout out to my man, Marvin Thompson of Mo'Horns. They've been traveling with me for years. You can count on them. They're funky and they know how to get the job done.

“

Rodney "Darkchild" Jerkins

When it comes to brass sections - sax, trumpets, trombones, any type of horn, I only rock with one crew and that's my homies Mo'Horns.

“

James Hall

When I think of dope horn bands, there's James Brown, Earth Wind and Fire, and Mo'Horns...

“

Jeff Bradshaw

Mo'Horns has been doing big things for many years in music, musical arrangements and doing things at the highest level.
